HUNTING AREA

Around 20000 hectares of hunting grounds - free range at an altitude of 300 to 700 meters above sea level. Around 16000 hectares are covered with forests, 4000 hectares with meadows, fields and ponds. The magnificent pine and spruce forests are interspersed with oak and beech forests, meadows and ponds. The history of this beautiful natural area is closely linked to the history of the country. Before the Second World War, Czechs and Germans lived together in many village there. In 1950, the Soviets set up a military base and began destroying many villages, leaving the area sparsely populated. This state of semi-abandonment for 40 years led to the creation of a vast area of untouched forests, which still today are home to many protected species of plants and animals. Red stags and fallow bucks can be hunted in this stunning area with trophies usually up to silver medal. We recommend hunting in this beautiful natural area to hunters who are looking for an experience to remember. According to our guests who have hunted for red stag or fallow buck in this area, it is a unique experience that is well worth the price you pay. If you are looking for a hunt to get the biggest trophy for the lowest price (we know that some hunters legitimately think that way) then this is not the hunt for you. However, you would be missing out on something unique. For groups of 4-5 hunters, we recommend staying in the hunting lodge.

The accommodation is offered in a stylish guest house with very good in house restaurant. The rooms have all needed for a comfortable stay, comfortable bed, privat bathroom, TV and free wi-fi connection. The restaurant is specialized in local cuisine.
